ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Working on this thesis has been a knowledgeable experience, full of challenge and value for me. This piece of work would not be completed without sincere and generous help of the following people. First and foremost, I would like to express my thanks to Dr. Graeme Ritchie, my thesis supervisor, who gave me ideas, confidence and enthusiasm. His expertise in the field, patience and valuable time has encouraged me to complete this work. Without his guidance and precious suggestions and comments, the current study may not be possible.

I wish to acknowledge Dr. Jonathan Leather and Dr. Jenjit Gasigijtamong for their helpful comments and suggestions allowing me to polish this work. I am also very grateful to all the teachers in the TESOL program of Payap University as their remarkable training has assisted me to gain an insight into the art, skills and profession of teaching throughout the program here.

I am greatly indebted to the language center director, Mr. John Gunther, for his sincere patience, assistance and warm cooperation for finding some teachers for me to observe. My special thanks go to the four teachers, Mr. Joseph Capaldi, Mr. James Farrell, Mr. Christopher Tarn, and Mr. Cole Pilegard for their kind contribution in the data collection process. Their keen experience in the profession and patience supported me throughout this study. Without them, this work is not likely to have been concluded.

Let me say, "thank you" to all my friends who have contributed to the instruments and time during data collection and analysis. First is Mr. Thepakorn Khunphul who kindly let me borrow his video camera for more than 2 months. Next is Miss Sinitra Chathep who unselfishly allowed me to use her cassettes. Another person is Mrs. Supaporn Manowong, a lecturer at Maejo University, who assisted me in transcribing the tape and commented on my chapters. Also, I greatly appreciate Mr. Nattawut Choomthong and Miss. Panita Chaisorn who helped me design the table presentation.

My greatest gratitude goes to my parents for all their support. Last but never least, this work will always remind me of “Deemak”, my 15 year-old black and tan miniature dachshund, who was always lying under my feet while I was working on this thesis until his last minute.
