ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Quite appropriate to the topic in this study, I have undergone my own journey of self-discovery and accountability through this endeavor. I feel I have emerged a stronger and more passionate teacher and person. I would like to dedicate this study to my father for believing in the value of education and working incredibly hard to provide it for me and my siblings. For all the long-distance love and support from my mother and role model in all things, especially teaching, thank you is simply not enough. I am particularly grateful for the unconventional help from my sister, Nicole Desharnais. The image of her getting a foot massage on the beach with my thesis draft on her lap and red pen in hand provided much needed comic relief. For pulling me out of a deep thesis funk and helping me find my voice and focus again, I am eternally indebted to Dr. Laura Godfredsen.

Much appreciation goes to my thesis advisor, Dr. Jonathan Leather for the many brainstorming sessions that helped shape this study. I thoroughly enjoyed meetings with him as he has a unique perspective on life and language and is a brilliant wordsmith. I would also like to express my gratitude to the inspiring teachers I had the pleasure of studying with at Payap University, Ajarn Philip Keay and Dr. Graeme Ritchie, they are what I like to call “teacher’s teachers”. Yonok University has been more than generous in giving me time, space and resources to finish this thesis. Without the support and encouragement from my colleagues, friends in Thailand and abroad, and students at Yonok University, I would have been lost. Special mention goes to Porntiwa Tatom for all her help with formatting.

I am very lucky to have a wonderful, understanding husband who instinctively knew when to push me with my work and when to provide welcome distractions.

Thanks to his patience, humor and love, I had the strength and inspiration to finish this study.
