ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

My study for an M.A. in linguistics is completed with this thesis and could only have been accomplished with the kind support from many people and organizations whom I would like to pay my respects to and express my deep appreciation.

I feel very indebted and thankful to my main advisor, Miss Lynn Paulsen. Her useful suggestions and discussions with kindness and great patience have induced me to accomplish my research. I would also like to thank Dr. Irvine Davis and Mr. Mark W. Wannemacher, my other committee members, for their valuable comments and suggestions in the improvement of my thesis. My thanks also goes to all my teachers at my former schools and at Payap University, especially to Arthur A. Cooper and Ziggy Wichmann. They have provided me with a very good education.

I would like to express my great thanks and gratitude to the Thailand Lahu Baptist Convention for financial support during my undergraduate studies and The Grace Foundation for financial support during my graduate studies years.

I would also like to thank my two main informants, Kham and Calaw, for taking the time to sit, talk, and provide data. I will not forget to express my sincere thanks to Jeffrey German, who has been encouraging throughout the difficult task of this study, and thanks to Sandra Gould for her valuable computer helps. The love of the Joneses, the Montreewats, my sister, my brother, my sister-in-law and my special friend encouraged me all the time to accomplish my study and my work on this thesis. Also for other people I haven't named here, I still keep in mind their love and care.

The most valuable persons in my life are my mother and my father. Without their love, care, advice, teaching and support, it would not be possible for me to accomplish this work. I dedicate this work to my beloved mother and father.

My final thanks goes to God, who gives love, knowledge and every thing for my life.
