TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ii

Abstract iii

List of Figures ix

List of Tables xi

List of Abbreviations and Symbols xiii

Chapter 1 1

Introduction 1

1.0 Rationale 1

1.1 Research questions 2

1.2 The scope of the study 2

1.3 Background information about the Bai 4

1.3.1 The Bai people 4

1.3.2 The Bai language 5

1.3.2.1 Genetic affiliation 5

1.3.2.2 Phonology 7

1.3.2.3 Grammar 10

1.4 Important concepts in this study 11

Chapter 2 14

Review of related literature 14

2.0 Introduction 14

2.1 Language attitudes 14

2.1.1 Language attitudes studies in China 21

2.2 Language use 23

2.2.1 Language use studies in China 25

2.3 Social factors affecting language maintenance and language shift 28

2.3.1 Studies on social factors and bilingualism in China 30

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

2.4 Bilingual education in China 31
Chapter 3 32
Methodology 32
3.0 Overview of methodology 32
3.1 Questionnaire 32
3.1.1 Questionnaire designing procedure 32
3.1.2 Questionnaire content 33
3.1.3 Questionnaire administration procedure 34
3.1.4 Advantages and disadvantages of questionnaires 35
3.1.5 Difficulties encountered in survey 36
3.2 Sampling 37
3.2.1 Quota sampling 38
3.2.2 Systematic sampling 41
3.3 Informal interviews 42
3.4 Participant Observation 43
3.5 Analysis procedure 44
3.6 Summary 44
Chapter 4 46
Language use 46
4.0 Introduction 46
4.1 Summary of linguistic background information of the subjects 46
4.2 Language contact with Chinese and bilingual ability 49
4.2.1 Bilingual ability 49
4.2.2 Language contact with Chinese 53
4.3 Domains in this study 58
4.4 Language use in seven domains 59
4.4.1 Language use in the family (the in-group domain) 65
4.4.2 Language use in an unpredictable mixed-group domain 68

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

4.4.3 Language use in a predictable mixed-group domain 74
4.5 A comparison of language use in Jinhua and rural villages 79
4.5.1 Differences in language contact with Chinese and bilingual proficiency80
4.5.1.1 Language contact with Chinese 80
4.5.1.2 Bilingual proficiency 82
4.5.2 Differences in language use 84
4.5.2.1 The family domain 84
4.5.2.2 The unpredictable mixed-group domain and the predictable mixed-group domain 86
4.6 Summary 87
Chapter 5 89
Language attitudes 89
5.0 Introduction 89
5.1 Bai people's language attitudes 89
5.1.1 Attitudes towards Bai language and culture 90
5.1.2 Attitudes towards other Bai speakers 96
5.1.3 Attitudes towards language development programs in Bai 101
5.1.3.1 Attitudes towards literacy 104
5.1.3.2 Attitudes towards media 108
5.2 A comparison of language attitudes in Jinhua and rural villages 111
5.2.1 Attitudes towards Bai language and culture 111
5.2.2 Attitudes towards other Bai speakers 115
5.2.3 Attitudes towards language development programs in Bai 119
5.2.3.1 Attitudes towards literacy in Bai 121
5.2.3.1 Attitudes towards media programs in Bai 122
5.3 Summary 124
Chapter 6 126
Conclusions and Applications 126

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

6.0 Introduction 126
6.1 Conclusions regarding language use 126
6.2 Conclusions regarding language attitudes 127
6.3 Conclusions regarding the difference between results from the county seat and the villages 128
6.4 Applications of the research results 129
6.5 Evaluation of the methodology 130
6.6 Suggestions for further studies 131
Appendix 1: Individual questionnaire in English 133
Appendix 2: Individual questionnaire in Chinese 144
Appendix 3: Village leader questionnaire in English 154
Appendix 4: Village leader questionnaire in Chinese 158
Bibliography 162

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 1 Location of Dali Bai Prefecture in China (adapted from Allen 2004) 3

Figure 2 Map of Dali Bai Prefecture 3

Figure 3 Summary of views on possible Bai affiliation 6

Figure 4 Determinants of language attitudes (adapted from Baker 1992: 45) 18

Figure 5 Language attitudes and bilingualism model (adapted from Baker 1992: 93)19

Figure 6 Map of Jianchuan County marked with research areas 39

Figure 7 Self-reported bilingual proficiency 53

Figure 8 Frequency of speaking Hanyu (Question 11) 56

Figure 9 Pie graph of percentage of language choice in all domains (total sample). . 63

Figure 10 Language use in seven domains 64

Figure 11 Language use in seven domains sorted by use of Bai 65

Figure 12 Language use in the family domain 68

Figure 13 Language use in the unpredictable mixed-group domains 70

Figure 14 Language use in the government domain 71

Figure 15 Language use in the stranger domain 72

Figure 16 Language use in the temple domain 73

Figure 17 Language use in the predictable mixed-group domains 75

Figure 18 Language use in the education domain 76

Figure 19 Language use in the market domain 77

Figure 20 Language use in the workplace domain 78

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

Figure 21 A comparison of language use in three domain groups..... 79
Figure 22 A comparison of language contact with Chinese 81
Figure 23 A comparison of responses to question 11 82
Figure 24 A comparison of self-reported bilingual proficiency..... 83
Figure 25 A comparison of language use in the family domain 84
Figure 26 A comparison of language use of Bai in the family domain 85
Figure 27 Attitudes towards Bai language and culture 92
Figure 28 Attitudes towards Bai and other speakers..... 98
Figure 29 Attitudes towards other Bai speakers 99
Figure 30 A comparison of commitment to literacy in Bai and Chinese..... 104
Figure 31 A comparison of attitudes towards adults' literacy and children's literacy107
Figure 32 Positive attitudes towards Bai media programs in Bai 109
Figure 33 A comparison of positive attitudes towards Bai language and culture..... 113
Figure 34 A comparison of positive attitudes towards other Bai speakers in seven situations..... 117
Figure 35 A comparison of willingness to commit to a Bai literacy programs 121
Figure 36 A comparison of positive attitudes towards Bai media programs 123

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

LIST OF TABLES

Table 1 Consonant chart of Jianchuan Bai 8

Table 2 Vowel chart of Jianchuan Bai 8

Table 3 A summary of possible tone classification 9

Table 4 Wiersma's Bai tone categorization 9

Table 5 Zhao and Xu's Bai tone categorization 9

Table 6 A typological framework for minority-language-situation variables (adapted from Edwards 1992:49) 29

Table 7 Profile of factors of rural research sites 40

Table 8 Factors in individual quota sampling strata 40

Table 9 The actual sample sizes of the five villages 41

Table 10 Profile of factors of the county seat Jinhua 42

Table 11 A summary of the linguistic demographic information 47

Table 12 A summary of the self-evaluation bilingual ability 52

Table 13 Language contact with Chinese 55

Table 14 Language contact with Chinese through reading and writing ability 55

Table 15 Domains of the study 58

Table 16 A summary of language choice 61

Table 17 A summary of language choice sorted by reported use of Bai 62

Table 18 Language use in the family domain 66

Table 19 Language use in the unpredictable mixed-group domain 69

PAYAP UNIVERSITY

Table 20 Language use in the predictable mixed-group domain 74

Table 21 Attitudes towards Bai language and culture 91

Table 22 Knowledge about Bai orthography 91

Table 23 Attitudes towards other Bai speakers..... 97

Table 24 Attitudes towards language develop programs in Bai 103

Table 25 A comparison of attitudes towards Bai language and culture..... 112

Table 26 A comparison of knowledge about Bai orthography 112

Table 27 The chi-square test results of questions concerning attitudes towards Bai language and culture..... 114

Table 28 A comparison of attitudes towards other Bai speakers 116

Table 29 The chi-square test results of questions concerning attitudes towards other Bai speakers..... 118

Table 30 A comparison of attitudes towards Bai language development programs. 120

Table 31 The chi-square test results of questions concerning Bai literacy 122

Table 32 The chi-square test results of questions concerning Bai media programs . 124

PAYAP UNIVERSITY