ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis could not be completed without great assistance of Dr.Graeme Ritchie who kindly gave me valuable advice and encouraged me to get through the most difficult time of my academic program. I also would like to express my most sincere thanks to him and other members of my committee, Dr.Jonathan Leather, Asst. Prof. Dr.Wanida Penkingarn who patiently guided me through the thesis process, and especially Dr.Lamar Robert who taught me how to use statistics.

My special thanks are also extended to many people at Thasatoi Municipal School, especially the school principle Mrs. Bussaba Laorchairungsri who allowed me to experiment and collect data with the ninth grade students, room 1. My appreciation also goes to my colleagues both in Thasatoi Municipal School and Technical Services and Planning Division, Chiang Mai City Municipality who assisted me in substitution whenever I was busy with this thesis. Thanks to students, who have contributed to much of this thesis and who have taught me much about the problems encountered in teaching English in Thai classroom. They were great resource for conducting language research. I wish to thank my respective family; father, mother, and sister who showed great patience with this thesis and who refreshed me in the time of exhaustion. I hope they will regard the result as worth the patience.
